Madrid, Febr. 7.

THE 22 past Sir Henry Goodricke Envoy Extraordinary of His Majesty of Great Britain, had Audience of the King and Queen. The first instant their Majesties went a Hunting, and were treated with a noble Collation in a Wood by the Marquis de Licke. And this day the Court was entertained with a Bull Feast, in which Don Felix de Cordoua had two Horses killed under him.

Strasburg, Febr. 23. The 21 instant the Dauphiness arrived here, being received by this City with all the Honors and Respects they could shew her. She made her Entry in a very rich Coach (wherein she sat all alone.) The next morning she parted again, all her German Officers and Servants (except two Ladies who she retains with her) having first taken their leave (being to return to Municke) and received all of them Presents according to their several degrees and qualities. Yesterday she dined at Tegersheim, her French Servants and Attendants having met her at some small distance from thence, in whose charge she now is.

Cologne, Febr. 27. Yesterday we received with much satisfaction an account, that the French on Saturday last quitted Wesel, their Baggage, among which were 15 Wagons laden with Mony, and the Cavalry leading the way the day before. At the same time that the French Infantry marched out on Saturday several Brandenburg Companies entred, and the Keys of the Town were delivered to the person that commanded them. From Prague we are told that the Emperor is very desirous to have a meeting with the Electors, and some other of the most considerable Princes of the Empire, to confer with them concerning the present condition of the Empire, and the providing the most effectual means for its security. From Hungary they write, that the Malecontents grow every day more and more enclined to a Peace.

Meurs, Febr. 27. The 24th the Chevalier de Sourdis quitted Wesel, and passed the Rhine with the French Troops under his command, which consisted in 69 Companies of Foot, and 33 Troops of Horse, and the next day had their quarters at Elsenburg, from whence they continued their march yesterday towards Nuis.

Charlemont, Febr. 27. This place is now come under the French Dominion. It was stipulated by an Article of the Peace made the last year between France and Spain at Nimeguen that the Catholick King should, within a year after the concluding a Peace between the Emperor and France, deliver to the French, Charlemont or Dinant, which last being a place belonging to the Bishop of Liege, and depending on the Empire, the Spaniards in case they would not part with Charlemont, were to obtain the Cession of it from the said Bishop with the consent of the Emperor and Empire. The year being near expiring, the French demanded the performance of the said Article, which they limited to the 28 instant, and threatned in case it was not made good by that time, to enter into the Spanish Territories with an Army. Whereupon the Governor of the Spanish Netherlands sent the Count d'Archinto to treat with the Elector of Cologne concerning the Cession of Dinant, and at the same time sent to Spain to know the Kings pleasure in this Affair, where it was resolved to prevent all occasions of misunderstanding between the two Crowns, and to preserve the Peace, which the Inhabitants of these Countries are so desirous to have continued, to deliver Charlemont on the day appointed; accordingly the necessary orders were given, and this day the Count de Montbron Lieutenant Governor of the French Conquests in the Spanish Netherlands, and Governor of Tournay, came hither with several French Troops, and took possession of this place, the Spanish Garison marching to Namur.

Hague, March 1. The news of the evacuation of Wesel, occasions much joy here; for people began to have apprehensions that the French intended to settle there, in order to the making use of it in the designs they might have upon this State, which they are now freed of, and are therefore much at ease. The Ministers in Zealand having in their Sermons spoken somewhat freely concerning the Alliance proposed by the French, the States of that Province have reproved them for it, for that they ought not to meddle with State Affairs. The Sieur Van Leeuwen, Ambassador from this State in England, has orders to continue there till the arrival of the Sieur Zitters, who is appointed his Successor, and will part hence some time this month.

Paris, March 2. The 27 past the King and Queen arrived at Villiers Costerez, where they were received and entertained by the Duke of Orleans The same day the Duke de Crequi came thither, and gave the King an account that he had left the Dauphiness at Schlestadt. From Lisbon we have advice, that the States of that Kingdom had confirmed the Marriage between the Infanta and the Duke of Savoy.

Whitby, Febr. 10. There came lately hither one Richard Evans, pretending to be in orders, and a Master of Arts of Christs Church, Oxon, and Preached several times as such, but appeared afterwards to be a Cheat, and upon examination confessed he was never ordained, and was not of Christs-Church, upon which the Justices of the Peace would have sent him to the House of Correction, but he made his escape. He is tall, lean, long-visaged, his legs large, his complexion pale and sallow, somewhat hook-nosed, his hair black and long, his age about 29 or 30. It is thought fit to give this publick notice, to prevent his Cheats for the future, and that he may be taken and receive the punishment he deserves.
